

Asian Young Aerosol Scientist Award

The Asian Young Aerosol Scientist Award recognizes outstanding contributions to aerosol science and technology by young aerosol scientists in Asian countries. The purpose of the award is to promote aerosol research by young scientists in Asia.

The award is jointly sponsored by TSI Inc., members of the Asian Aerosol Research Assembly (AARA), and by contributions from the organizers of the Asian Aerosol Conference (AAC), aerosol organizations, and aerosol-related companies and individuals. The award, which consists of a cash prize and a plaque, will be presented to one or two recipients at the AAC. Any Asian aerosol scientist who satisfies the following conditions is eligible to be nominated, except members of the Award Committee.

- (i) The nominee must be 40 or younger (i.e., must not have reached his or her 41st birthday) on the nomination deadline (four months before the AAC).
- (ii) The nominee must have been working in Asian countries for at least the last 5 years.

Submission of Nominations:

Nominations for the award must be made by an Asian aerosol scientist and accompanied by at least three letters of recommendation highlighting the candidate's contributions to aerosol science and technology.

Nominations, letters of recommendation, and supporting documents that confirm the candidate's eligibility according to the above two conditions, including the nominee's curriculum vita and three most significant published papers, must be received electronically no later than April 30, 2007 by the award committee:
